Birtle & District Foundation: A DECADE OF COMMUNITY IMPACT

In 2010, a small group of passionate individuals came together with a vision for the future of Birtle and its surrounding districts. They envisioned a community where every resident had access to resources that would enhance their quality of life, where local initiatives could thrive, and where the spirit of giving would be nurtured for generations to come. Thus, the Birtle and District Foundation was born.

Fast forward to 2023, and the impact of this Foundation speaks volumes. From its humble beginnings, the Foundation has grown into a pillar of support for the community, thanks to the unwavering generosity of its donors.

The journey began in 2011 with the first grant of $964.00 to the Park Playground Committee. Since then, the Foundation has gone from strength to strength. This past granting year, an astounding $25,450.00 was distributed to various community projects and organizations, showcasing the Foundation's commitment to enhancing every aspect of life in Birtle and its neighboring areas.

Among the beneficiaries of the Foundation's generosity in 2023 were the Bird-tail Country Museum, Birtle Agriculture Society, Birtle Elementary

Birtle & District Foundation

School, Foxwarren Leisure Centre, Foxwarren Arena, and Prairie View Gymnastics. These grants serve as a testament to the Foundation's diverse interests, supporting initiatives ranging from education and culture to sports and recreation.

One standout contribution in 2023 was the Francis William Crew Community Volunteer Award, totaling $9360.00, awarded to Serena Stainer & Rebecca Cheasley. This award underscores the Foundation's recognition of individuals who go above and beyond to make a difference in their community, embodying the spirit of generosity and service.

Looking ahead, the Foundation remains dedicated to fostering community-based projects that enrich the lives of Birtle & district (former Town & RM of Birtle) residents. Grant applications are welcomed year-round, with a deadline of November 1st for the upcoming granting cycle. Interested parties are encouraged to submit detailed project proposals outlining the intended impact on the community, along with financial projections and organizational statements.

At the helm of the Foundation are esteemed board members including Roger Wilson, Liz Finch, Susanne Burdett, Fred Haun, Mandy Lee, Kaitlyn Salmon, Edith Galloway, and Eleanor Dnistransky. Their leadership and dedication have been instrumental in guiding the Foundation towards its mission of enriching the community.

Central to the Foundation's sustainability model is the Community Fund, where donations are pooled and invested to generate annual returns. A percentage of these earnings is then granted out each year, ensuring a perpetual cycle of giving. Foundation members note that their community fund has been made by many small donations over the years however donors have the option to establish named funds within the Community Fund, with contributions of $5000 or more. These named funds serve as a lasting legacy, honoring the donor's commitment to community philanthropy.

To date, several named funds have been established, including the Russell Redi-Mix Concrete Fund, Vanguard Credit Union Fund, Lawson & Shonda Ashcroft Family Fund, Mort & Joyce Cooley Fund, Ray & Margie Howard fund, Pat & Hector Robert fund, Garry Workman fund, David & Branwen Bicknell fund and the Francis William Crew Fund, among others. Each named fund represents a unique contribution to the collective prosperity of Birtle and its surrounding districts.

Importantly, all donations to the Foundation are tax-deductible, providing an added incentive for individuals and businesses to support the community's growth and development.

As we celebrate a decade of impact, the Birtle and District Foundation stands as a beacon of hope and possibility for generations to come. Through the collective efforts of donors, volunteers, and community partners, we continue to build a brighter future for all who call Birtle & Area home.

Unpacking a decision for MAiD

A Miniota man opted for medical assistance in dying. Here's why and how

Brenda Hunter Apr 24, 2024

It's been nearly three years since Ken Armitage of Miniota made the last decision of his 72-year-old life. That choice was to ask for and receive, Medical Assistance in Dying (MAiD).

It was a decision that he made almost immediately after receiving the diagnosis of glioblastoma (brain cancer) early in 2021, a condition with a poor prognosis.

Ken's whole family was supportive of his decision. However, had they known then what they know now, it would have enabled them to navigate the process with a little less stress and a lot less worry, making Ken's last days on earth a deliberate choice instead of a race against the clock.

Their message to others facing a similar dilemma and considering MAiD as an option?

"Don't wait until it's too late," said Trevor Armitage of Miniota on his father's decision, the process, and what they went through as a family. "Plan ahead, do your homework, talk to the MAiD people so when it's time to execute it, everything is lined up and you're not fighting against time."

What he means is that even though his dad had made his wishes known right from the time of his diagnosis and his medical team was well aware, MAiD wasn't something that automatically kicked in once all other avenues had been exhausted. They didn't realize then, all the steps involved with accessing MAiD.

Armitage advised that the onus is on the patient and their family to initiate contact with the MAiD team or ensure that their medical team has, well in advance of a potential request for services.

"MAiD is not an emergency service. The process takes time to go through," cautioned Jason Permanand, senior media relations and communications specialist for Shared Health. "The MAiD team aims to return calls within one week, and the assessment process usually takes two to four weeks or longer to complete.

And sometimes, time, clarity and patience are things that folks don't have a lot of near the end. At the very least, those precious moments might be better spent enjoying each other's company while lucid and pain-free if a well-laid plan is initiated in advance.

Many safeguards are in place for obvious reasons. A strict screening process is required for individuals requesting MAiD. An intake and triage process is administered by a centralized intake service located in Winnipeg. To be eligible, a person must have a "grievous and irremediable medical condition," be over 18 years and be mentally competent. The patient must make the application themselves and be able to give consent.

A grievous and irremediable medical condition is not necessarily a terminal one. However, candidates for the procedure must meet all of the criteria: a serious illness (not a mental illness), be in an advanced state of decline that is irreversible, and experience unbearable physical and/or mental suffering as a result of the condition which cannot be relieved.

Those requesting MAiD must be assessed by two independent physicians through the program and deemed competent of making their end-of-life decision. In addition, the recipient of MAiD must be able to give verbal consent immediately prior to the service being carried out or sign a Waiver of Final Consent shortly before, granting the family the ability to act on the individual's behalf should they become incapacitated.

The patient is asked throughout the process if they still wish to proceed and, in some cases, individuals decide not to go through with it. However, in some situations, like Ken's, health status can decline very rapidly and if those steps have not already been completed, it can be the determining factor in whether a candidate is approved for and can ultimately receive MAiD, or not.

"I consider them angels," said Armitage, of the MAiD team and the accommodating, compassionate and organized approach with which they assisted Ken's family with the process and ultimately, his provision.

"Dad had his interview on a Monday morning," said Armitage, vividly recalling the whole ordeal. Due to Ken's rapidly declining health, Trevor said, "They were able to have two doctors meet him at the same time via Telehealth and conduct a combined interview. He wasn't in good shape at all; he had been unable to sleep or relax, was restless, had involuntary finger tapping and couldn't open his eyes really. But Dad wanted this so bad that he was able to answer all of their questions really well - he literally hit it out of the park."

"There's nothing for me anymore, I'll never be myself again," he told the doctors during that Monday morning interview," recalled Armitage. "Then, when they asked him when he'd like to schedule the provision, without hesitation Dad asked, 'What are you doing tomorrow?'"

Although MAiD wasn't able to be coordinated quite that quickly, the provision was scheduled for Thursday. However, by early Thursday morning, Ken had lost consciousness. But he had signed a waiver of final consent on Monday, the day of his interview, allowing his family to act on his behalf. Deciding his own fate was the last gift he gave to his family. He was finally at peace knowing everything was in order. The MAiD team was dispatched from Winnipeg and the provision took place, taking less than an hour from start to finish.

The ability for individuals to choose MAiD as an end-of-life health care option is relatively new legislation for Canada, with changes to the Criminal Code of Canada originally passed in June of 2016. However, assisted death is not a new concept.

It is a contentious issue to say the least. So much so in fact, that many doctors and nurses may not even suggest it let alone endorse it, and some hospitals in the province may not support patients wishing to pursue the MAiD option. It is still new and doctors, by virtue of the Hippocratic Oath, pledge to save lives, not end them.

In 2023, Manitoba recorded 236 MAiD deaths, up from only 24 in 2016. The number one reason people report seeking MAiD services is terminal cancer, resulting in the loss of ability to engage in meaningful life activities and perform activities of daily living independently.

"Like the rest of Canada, Manitoba has generally seen a steady increase in demand for MAiD since the service became legal in Canada," reported Permanand. "On average there are approximately five MAiD deaths per week in the province. There are more MAiD approvals each year than there are MAiD deaths, mainly due to voluntarily withdrawn requests or individuals dying prior to receiving MAiD.

Choosing a MAiD option does not disqualify any pension or insurance benefits for survivors.

In Canada, there are two MAiD options although only one is available to Manitoba residents, clinically-administered medical assistance in dying. The other, self-administered MAiD or assisted suicide is not an option. MAiD can be performed outside of a hospital setting, although in-hospital is generally the most common. It cannot be made by advanced request (non-imminent death) or directive. It is not allowed via Power of Attorney or substitute decision-maker.

"The patient is the only person who can consent to MAiD, and they must meet all the eligibility criteria at the time of their request. Patients wanting MAiD for dementia can only receive MAiD while they can still provide consent," said Permanand on the strict adherence to policy to safeguard against misuse. "The new 2021 legislation allows for a waiver of final consent under strict circumstances. The waiver cannot be used as an advance directive or by a substitute decision-maker."

What he is referring to is Audrey's Amendment, a change to the legislation in 2021 initiated by the late Audrey Parker of Nova Scotia, who was diagnosed with Stage 4 breast cancer. Of course, no one fights harder for change than those who are personally affected, and she could see that this was an important piece. She was instrumental in lobbying for the waiver of final consent to be included.

For the Armitage family, this amendment came into effect on March 17, 2021, just a few short months before they would ultimately need it, allowing Ken to be granted his final wish.

Death is part of the spectrum of life and education about incurable conditions, irreversible degradation of health and about this service is key to making informed decisions regarding one's end-of-life care.

"People need to know about their options for all types of care, which may include MAiD. Making decisions requires clarity, energy, and commitment and all of those things are compromised in the 11th hour," said Christine Cross, who has helped countless people make informed choices when faced with a serious illness or declining health. "MAiD gives people the opportunity to live until they are ready to die."

Both she, and Cathy Coulter, also an advocate for people's right to make their own choices surrounding death and dying, say the feeling of helping people fulfill their last wishes in making it happen is indescribable. But, they caution, people need to get informed sooner, rather than later. They encourage families to have open, honest conversations about death and dying, and ask and answer the really hard questions that seem to be taboo in today's society.

Coulter said, "Education, communication and documentation are vital. When those who will look after you at the end of life see your wishes and plan in writing, it reduces the stress and pressure during one of your most difficult life experiences."

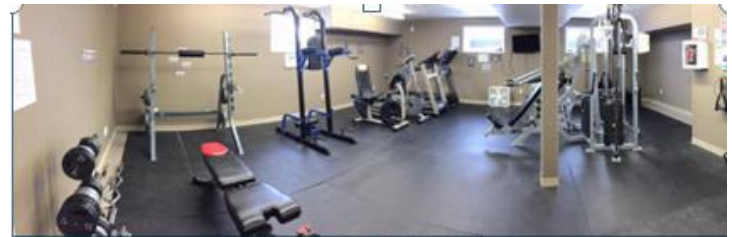

So why choose MAiD if you're going to die anyways?

A diagnosis of glioblastoma (brain cancer) is a condition with a poor prognosis.

"To me, that service was invaluable," said Armitage, the memory of his father tormented by the final stages of an illness still a vivid recollection. "My father's life for the next one day or three weeks... he could have laid like that in pain. We don't put an animal through that, so why would we do that to our people?"

"People think they know, but they don't understand what is required, with regard to legalities, signed documentation and how much time each process consumes," said Coulter. "To ensure that services, resources and options are in place when needed, people need to engage in difficult conversations about dying and learning what their loved one's wishes are."

FUSION CREDIT UNION PRESENTS COMMUNITY INFUSION.

For a fourth consecutive year, Fusion Credit Union is proud to present “Community Infusion”, the business idea competition that infuses economic growth and prosperity into our local communities. Past winners of Community Infusion include Dusty’s Butcher Shop from Dauphin, Fierce Female Hockey from Brandon, and Danielle’s Studio 12 from Rivers.

Entrepreneurs with a new business idea or an existing business they are looking to grow, or purchase, are asked to submit an application by Sunday, June 16, 2024, at midnight. Selected applicants will move to the next phase of the competition which will require a business plan submission. Up to five finalists will then be selected to pitch their idea to a panel of judges on Wednesday, October 23, 2024, for a chance to share in up to $30,000.00 in financial grants.

“At Fusion, we are Here for Good, and to us, that means we are committed to our communities today and for the long term,” says CEO Darwin Johns. “We are proud to offer Community Infusion for a fourth year as a tangible means of sparking ongoing economic development in our communities across the province.”

Mike Csversko, Business Development Manager for Fusion notes that, “Community impact is a foundational pillar for our organization. As a locally based financial institution in the Parkland and Southwestern Manitoba, we consider community impact and contribution to be at the core of our DNA. The Community Infusion initiative is one more way in which Fusion will play a role in supporting job creation, entrepreneurial support, community engagement, and business development in our trading area.” Full details regarding the competition can be found at www.fusioncu.com.
